

Surgical Technology

The Program

Surgical technologists assist in invasive surgical procedures and facilitate safe and effective patient care. They shoulder major responsibility in ensuring that operating rooms are safe and that equipment functions properly. In response to the needs of local hospitals, Prairie State College launched its surgical technology program in 2000, one of only five such programs in the Chicago area. The surgical technology program prepares students to work as surgical technologists in a variety of surgical settings and is based on a curriculum recommended by the Association of Surgical Technologists.

Career Opportunities

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment of surgical technologists is expected to grow much faster than the average for all occupations as the volume of surgeries increases due to the aging population. Hospitals will continue to be the primary employer of surgical technologists as they try to reduce costs by replacing nurses in the operating room. However, because of better paying opportunities, much faster employment growth is expected in physicians offices and in outpatient care centers, including ambulatory surgical centers. The median annual salaries for surgical technologists are $38,740.

About the Curriculum

This program begins only in the fall semester and takes one year to complete. It is a 40-hour per week daytime program, which includes both classes and clinical labs. Clinicals will be held in hospital operating rooms with students working with a preceptor. Students must have their own transportation to travel to a hospital site within a 45-mile radius.

The program meets nationally established standards for surgical technology. It has been approved by the Commission on Accreditation of Allied Health Programs (CAAHEP). Graduates may sit for the surgical technologist national certification exam administered by the National Board on Surgical Technology and Surgical Assisting (NBSTSA).

Please note: This program has special admissions requirements. Contact the Office of Enrollment Services to obtain a copy of the Surgical Technologist Application Procedures Booklet or download a copy at prairiestate.edu.
